

Economist

All my life I try to count my money and money that I need back to someone. I really good in maths in school and now it help me a lot. Now I count all percent from shop's discount. I collect all information about water, electricity and food. Make predictions and control my money very well.

So you may said that I have few money to predict, control and count them. Of course only 14-24 % all of you may ask something like it. I think that nothing changes except number of digits. I create many new methods to value and save my money. I try to control everything that I have before, have in the moment and predict what I have and how it changes my life.

I near numbers all my life and I think that it may show something exact in life. Maybe optional and relative, but we have it and it help us.

I work as economist only for myself and cannot use it more in work because I think it is boring to count not your moneys. It is the kind of work that I want to describe, but do not want to work for someone.
